Application for Admission to the LL.D. (Comparative Law) Program in Law and Political Science for International Students for the academic year of 2010
The Graduate School of Law (GSL), Nagoya University

.....

This program in law and politics was established as part of the doctoral program of Graduate School of Law in 2005. An entrance examination is required, aimed at overseas students who are to follow a program centered around the writing of a thesis in English.

Students who enter this program are aiming towards obtaining a LL.D. (Comparative Law) and this program has been established to this end. The thesis, which is the core part of the LL.D. (Comparative Law), should be a contribution towards discovering and resolving theoretical and practical issues in the wider sense of “Asian Cooperative Legal Assistance”* and other related areas.

*“Cooperative Legal Assistance” means an international cooperation in connection with legal and political systems that are transforming from socialist and authoritarian systems.

Sufficient English language proficiency is required for this program. Japanese language proficiency is not a prerequisite to admission. However, candidates of the LL.D. (Comparative Law) Program will be required to develop Japanese language proficiency to carry out their research, and therefore, applicants who have Japanese reading ability at the time of their application will be favored.
